ARREST LOWELL TRIAL WITNESS FOR PERJURY

The biggest sensation in connection with the conspiracy trial of Lowell city officials broke today when George P. Le Grand of Lowell, president of the Lowell Head Construction Company, a witness for the Commonwealth, was arraigned in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court, East Cambridge, on an indictment charging perjury in two counts.

Le Grand pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000. Bond was given by John Brady, a Lowell contractor.

New York, May 7 (I.N.S.).—The reunion of the Stillmans has assured for Baby Guy Stillman a home and future with his parents, Mrs. Edith Stillman said today.

"Of course, Guy will make his home with us," said the mother. "I would not live here without him."

The child who was the innocent cause of the litigation between James Stillman and his wife is as present at the Stillman home as Grand Avenue, Quebec.

"We shall put him in a school soon," said Mrs. Stillman, "but meanwhile I like to have him out in the country."

London, May 7 (A.P.).—The government announced by radio today that all ranks of the armed forces of the Crown will receive the government's full support in any action they may find necessary to take in efforts to aid the civil powers in dealing with strike disorders.

London, May 7 (A.P.).—An international aspect was given to the strike today when the executive committee of the Danish Trade Union at Copenhagen gave preliminary notice of a walkout in support of the British workers.

Charbourg, France, May 7 (A.P.).—The United States liner Leviathan departed 1,100 passengers here today, many of them American tourists. The ship's officers have decided to send the ship's 80,000 pieces of laundry to Paris for washing instead of to Southampton, where the ship is due late today.

London, May 7 (I.N.S.).—Beer is now threatened by the general strike. A large number of brewery workers have joined the strikers. Bottled and barrelled beer is still being sold, but production has been reduced to a minimum.

FATE OF QUINN, FERRYBOAT AND TEN, TO JURY TUG CRASH

Charging that Patrick A. McDonnell of Boston was the "money man" in the alleged conspiracy, Assistant U. S. Attorney Hubert Thompson brought the Swampston man trial in Federal Court to a close today with the government's final argument.

Following the judge's charges, the case was to go to the jury to decide the fate of the eleven defendants. Thompson declared that although McDonnell was the "money man," everyone involved in the alleged plot, regardless of what small part he may have taken, was equally guilty.

Defense attorneys wound up their case with a combined attack on one of the government's principal witnesses, George Macdon, whom they charged testified for the government through fear of being deported.

With Quinn doing the best he could to police the town with an insufficient force of men, Attorney John J. Hurley, his counsel argued, Deputy Chief Edward J. Connelley and Walter F. Harvey were "imported" from Europe.

HUNDREDS JAILED IN STRIKE RIOTS; TANKS MANNED BY SOLDIERS

London, May 7 (A.P.).—Troops wearing steel helmets and carrying full field equipment were sent this afternoon into the dock districts of London, where the rough crowds are becoming too unruly for the unarmed police.

Chief developments in the British strike today were:

1—Troops man tanks and mount machine guns ready for action. Thus far they have been used only in curbing incipient riots. Armed forces landed from warships at points of disorder. Hundreds of arrests made in new riots. Stores looted. Scores jailed.

2—Premier Baldwin and J. H. Thomas, labor leader, held a secret conference to speed up peace. Churches and prominent citizens join move to bring about mediation.

DAUGHERTY, MILLER INDICTED IN FRAUD

New York, May 7 (I.N.S.).—Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney-General in President Harding's Cabinet, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury today on charges of libelously receiving fees in connection with the return of stock in the American Metals Company, seized by the alien property custodian's office during the war, to Swiss and German owners.

The same indictment charges Thomas W. Miller, formerly alien property custodian, and John T. King, formerly Republican national committeeman from Connecticut, with conspiracy.

The three are alleged to have received a total of $125,000. Today's indictment is the latest of startling revelations in connection with the transfer of $7,000,000 in Liberty bonds, representing the 40 per cent of stock in the American Metals Company, owned by alien corporations, to a group of Swiss banks representing German interests.

BRITISH TROOPS MAN TANKS; STAND READY FOR ACTION

General situation reported improved by government. More trains running and food supplies ample. Newspapers enlarge size. Some workers reported returning to jobs.

London, May 7.—Hundreds of arrests, the majority in Glasgow, with numerous injuries, looting and extensive property damage reported, featured the struggle between the government and the strikers today.

Intensified military activity under the direction of the war office was in progress through the night and this morning. But no troops or naval forces have as yet been thrown into the battle, confining their efforts to adding the police in putting down the recent rioting and violence.

Every army barracks in the London area and in all industrial sections, including the coal mining districts, bristles with troops, although the government's policy is to keep them in the background until critical developments make their employment necessary.

Armored cars, tanks and machine guns are ready at Hyde Park, while soldiers and sailors have been taken off the ships for land duty, equipped for war.

Garibons are standing by at principal ports, ready to deal with outbreaks upon the docks or assist in the moving of troops and supplies beyond the inland.

While the Trades Union Congress is deliberating today whether to call off the electrical workers, workers, strikers were declared at the Newcastle and Newport power plants as well as in five municipal plants in London. If the electrical workers are ordered out 1,000,000 persons will be affected.

The government says it has all hands made to replace any strikers by volunteers or army electrical engineers.

HUNDREDS ARE ARRESTED. Nearly 100 arrests were made in Glasgow alone. Huddling elements have broken out in Edinburgh and in this city police made a round-up of persons alleged to have been takers in mob attacks on buses and other means of transportation.

Rioters were arrested when they forced their way into Hyde Park and attacked the official Emergency Transport Service. Four men were taken into custody in Sheffield when they were found to be carrying a Lewis machine gun wrapped up in paper.

At Middleburgh, official details said, last night's rioting was heavy and rioters were charged to wreck the late passenger train. A crowd prevented the closing of the grade crossing gates, invading the passenger station, wrecked the freight station and did other serious damage.

Strike Bulletins

London, May 7 (I.N.R.)—The strike has now extended to five of the municipal power plants of London. The boroughs affected are Hammersmith, Poplar, Westminster, Battersea and Merton. More than a million electricity users are affected. Volunteers are maintaining partial service.

London, May 7 (I.N.R.)—The "British Worker," the official organ of the strikers, appeared today in a reduced size and announced that the government had stopped its supply of paper. It declares that unless this ban is lifted by tomorrow it will probably have to cease publication.

London, May 7.—Five hundred Coldstream Guards arrived at Poplar today to take over the duty of guarding the Royal India docks.

Antwerp, Belgium, May 7 (A.P.)—The dock workers here have decided to cease handling coal shipments for England.

Glasgow, May 7 (A.P.)—The Lanarkshire tram and bus service has been suspended, but in Glasgow the buses and cars today were more numerous. The situation generally as regards transportation is better.

Newport, Monmouthshire, May 7 (A.P.)—The big industrial center will be without electric power tonight, unless volunteers can be persuaded. The corporation refused to discontinue supplying power to the industrial centers, whereupon the strike committee advised withdrawal of all the men.

Gangs who have helped themselves previously to beer. Twenty-two arrests were made in Edinburgh, where only the appearance of the mounted police ended the disorder in the Old Scotland of the city.

Many windows in private houses and business premises were broken during the trouble. Trams and buses were running today, and there was increased railway service.

OCEAN TRAFFIC NOW RESTS ON YANKEE SHIPS

New York, May 7 (A.P.)—The burden of maintaining coast traffic between the United States and Great Britain has fallen upon the shoulders of shipping men in New York today, with news that English ports were tied up so badly by the general strike that sailing of the liner, Minotaur, had been cancelled.

The Minotaur of the Atlantic transport line, was scheduled to sail from London today, but has been unable to unload her cargo.

United States line agents in London added that a special train has been ordered to take passengers from the Liverpool to Southampton to London at once today. The Leviathan left New York with insufficient fuel for her return, and some activity was reported by a shipping agent.

Canada has officials have said "however, that freight and passengers from the Maritime and the English had been discharged without difficulty by volunteer workers at Southampton. Their crews have signed for another voyage."

Plymouth, Eng., May 7 (A.P.)—The French liner Paris landed twenty passengers and the mails from New York here today. Forty other passengers who had intended to land stayed on the vessel and proceeded to Havre. The German liner Berlin from New York omitted her usual call here, proceeding direct to Cherbourg and Bremen.

LABOR FIGHTS POWDY CHARGE IN COMMONS

Resent Allegation That Men Are Being Sent Out to Overturn Busses

London, May 7 (I.N.R.)—Bitterness displayed itself again in the House of Commons today when Sir Arthur Hildrick declared the Labor party is sending men out to overturn and hinder passenger vehicles. Laborites arose and vociferously denounced that Sir Arthur withdrew the statement.

The chairman attempted to interpose, but with little success as David Russell, the Clydeside Laborite, scolded about it.

"I don't care a damn for you or the House, he has got to withdraw that."

Sir Arthur eventually withdrew his statement and order was restored.

The Laborites combined in attacks upon the "British Gazette," declaring that the Gazette is "unfair" and is "leading mischievousness."

Jack Jones, Silverton M. P., again was full of defiance. "We ask for fair play," he shouted. "We ask for fair play," he shouted. "We ask for fair play," he shouted.

"We have plenty of reserves and we will call them up if compelled to."

A. F. of L. Silent on British Appeal for Funds

Washington, May 7 (A.P.)—American Federation of Labor officials declined to comment today on the action of the British Trade Union Congress, in dispatching a cablegram appealing to the Federation for funds to ease on the strike. The appeal has not yet reached headquarters here.

Washington, May 7 (I.N.R.)—British workers are "absolutely solid" behind the general strike, according to a statement by the British Trade Union Congress.

"Thanks for expression of encouragement. Movement absolutely solid behind the general strike," said the statement.

"We are united with the British workers in their fight against capitalism. We are sending 1,000 pence and are collecting more."

COMMON SENSE BRITAIN'S BIG NEED—COOK

London, May 7 (A.P.)—I am still hoping common sense will prevail and that the miners will get a fair settlement," said A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Union, to the newspaper men today. Mr. Cook repudiated a statement attributed to him that all was hopeless and that the miners realized this.

Rumors continued to circulate today regarding a possible way to bring the Laborites and the government together over the conference table again, but nothing in the request was available officially, either from the government or the labor leaders.

A certain quarter of the labor movement expressed the hope a union might be found, and following Cook's statement this quarter guardedly put forth the belief that a way out of the present gloom might be found early next week.

Influential circles, in addition to the churches, have been working quietly during the past day or two to find a medium by which negotiations could be resumed in the coal dispute as both sides might save their faces after their reiterated denials that they could not resume the parleys.

Official Communiqué Says Workers Going Back

London, May 7 (A.P.)—The government at midday issued a statement declaring that conditions throughout the country were improving, with the workers returning to their jobs or making overtures for conciliation in case they to return.

The statement declared on overture to the Trades Union Congress for a peace movement.

Only minor disturbances have occurred throughout the country, it was asserted. In London only five of the 74 power stations are not working normally.

Yesterday in the London area 25,000 volunteers were enrolled, making a total of 75,000.

BLACK BOOSTS THE CLOTHES DOCTOR

Filene Publicity Expert Gives New Slogan on the Sales Profession

Meet the clothes doctor. Service to a customer in a retail store should be a profession of honor and dignity and much higher remuneration, with each salesperson a clothes expert, or a hat or shoe expert, thoroughly trained, diagnosing and prescribing like a doctor what is most suitable to the pocket book and simultaneously most appropriate to the color and appearance of the customer, according to Frank A. Black, of department store publicity men.

Raising his opinion on thirty years experience with retail stores, Black declared to the store managers attending the National Dry Goods Association convention at the Hotel Roosevelt, that the great problem of present day retail selling was better selling by better salesperson.

"To most persons the salesperson is the store," he said. "The merchant is important but the effect of the salesperson on the goods is beyond measure."

The salesperson has the important job of fitting the goods to the customer, yet the customer gets least attention of any group in the store.

"With a higher grade of intelligence and training, the salesperson is capable of doing much more than to boost sales 50 per cent, or pay the salesperson proportionately."

"Fifty dollars a week is an extraordinary salary for a salesperson. In my opinion it should be ordinary."

PURSUING CLOTHING
"It is not easy to solve such a problem. I do not see, however, why retailing should not be a profession. It seems to me more important than medicine or law. One can be a doctor once a year or less but one visits the salesperson at least once a week."

"In some stores there has been some coherent development of this idea of the expert salesperson with a background of thorough training. Such experts turn their service to customers into a fine professional achievement. They take account of the customer's means and prescribe clothing to fit the customer's purse from which the customer gets the utmost in aesthetic value in merchandise and in appearance."

They take a woman and match her coloring, her pose and carriage and her appearance in general with clothing exactly suitable. And in each case, the clothes and accessories prescribed are based on what the customer can afford.

"This is real service to the customer."

"One constructive suggestion seems to be the establishment of schools of retail selling, teaching the sale of such merchandise as shoes, clothing and hats."

BUSINESS A PYRAMID
This may seem far-fetched, but when one considers the importance of appropriate clothing, shoes and hats, their great value as contributions to appearance, which is all important nowadays, it is certainly not as important that the customer be fitted and dressed by an expert."

"Business ought to be a pyramid," he said, "with the management at the pointed top supported by a base of expert salespeople. Instead it is supported with the general management carrying the big load and extending a great deal of valuable time correcting deficiencies of salespeople."

Miss Lucy Thayer, of the R. H. White Company, spoke on "Marketing Selling Productiveness" and Merrill W. Osgood, Jordan Marsh Company, on "Human Relations in Retailing."

Janet Bloomfield, manager of the Retail Trade Board, Boston Chamber of Commerce, spoke this morning on "Vacation Policies for Saleswomen."

"The golf tournament begins this afternoon."

GROWS A SANTA BEARD AS HE WAITS FOR BARBER

New Bedford, May 7.—One particular misadventure was Captain Hill Norton, "barrett fisherman" from Vineyard Haven, and that's a long story.

Only one barber in the whole world can cut his hair and beard just to suit him and because that one is temporarily engaged in other pursuits Captain Hill blew into this port looking like Santa Claus with white hair down over his shoulders and beard heavy on his chest.

"Foller over in Woods Hole shut up his shop this Winter and went to hammerin' natts and sawin' wood," said the captain, "and there's no city feller can cut hair with him. I'll just wait till he leaves as o' that saw and tackles the shears and razor again."

Accompanied by only a wee quail, the captain spends his time aboard a 24-foot motor launch playing about Nahant and Cape Cod ports. Not fishing a bit this Winter vacation period, but any odds and ends that come his way find their way into the market.

HUB IGNORES FOOT TUNNELS

While agitation is being stirred up for construction of tunnels or bridges for pedestrians to cross busy thoroughfares it was discovered today that there are two tunnels under the city, and yet little word, or known about.

At Dewey square, the Boston Elevated Cambridge tunnel runs completely across and at Arlington and Boylston streets the Boylston street tunnel can be used to get to the other side of Boylston street.

At both stations there are two levels, with no admission charged to the upper level. Each can be used to avoid traffic.

Quinn was an easy target to shoot at and hit in Swampscott, because of the political situation there, his attorney argued. The government could not be pleased by the police department because if he did not come before he was condemned, and if he did, condemned just the same.

Every witness for the government was branded as having a motive for his testimony.

SAYS MOTHERS CAN PUT END TO CRIME WAVE

Pastor Declares Home and Church Have Power to Solve Problem

The good influence of mothers, together with practical application of the principles of Christianity, as suggested in an editorial by William Randolph Hearst, can alone overcome the present wave of crime, declared Rev. H. B. Hill, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Temple street. He has prepared a sermon for Mothers' day in which he will point out how unselfish, sacrificing motherhood can combat lawlessness in the present crisis.

"Mothers are, as to speak, synonymous with Christianity," said Mr. Hill. "The influence of good, Christian motherhood will save us in the existing crime situation. As in crucial periods of the centuries that are past, mothers must once again do more than their share."

"Mr. Hearst is naturally correct in his suggestion that Christianity be applied to the crime problem. The remedy lies entirely in the influence of home and church, and as regards the home mothers have played a great part through the ages, their influence has always been uplifting. Fine idealism, nobility, characteristic of the true mother, are surely needed today."

"Every successful man or woman must attribute the glory of fame and happiness of attainment to a mother, and with sincere humility I say that I might have been a bandit myself had it not been for the influence of my dear mother."

"Let mothers keep the standards of their children high and themselves noble, children will respect and follow their advice."

BOY NEAR DEATH AFTER COLLIDING WITH AUTO

With his skull and shoulder fractured by running against a passing automobile while playing with other boys in front of his home in Falcon street, East Boston, eleven-year-old John E. Anderson is in critical condition today at St. George's Hospital. He was taken first to the office of Dr. Edwards in Princeton street by Captain F. Nickerson, also of Falcon street, who was driving the car, and later removed to the hospital. Police reported that the boy apparently did not see the car and ran at full speed into the side of it, being hurled backward to the street.

DARTMOUTH RECEIVES GIFTS TOTALING $23,000

Haver, May 7.—Two gifts, totaling $23,000, to Dartmouth College are announced by President Hopkins. A gift of $19,000 is made by A. V. Barker, 71, of Bradenton, Fla., for the maintenance of a new fellowship in memory of his son, Lieutenant Fred Demeritte Barker, A. B. C., killed at Fleville, France, in October, 1914.

William W. Niles, 31, of New York, has given the college $3,000 for the purpose of increasing the scholarship founded by his father, W. W. Niles, Jr., '45.

BANS 'WIDOWS' IN HARVARD

Maloney and Mrs. Helen Cahill, sisters, of Fong street, Dorchester. They pleaded guilty to the charge against them, but Judge Stone took the disposition under consideration pending the investigation he ordered.

"DRANK SOME GIN"

Patrolman Henry P. Pelletier of the Beulah square, Cambridge, station, who made the arrests, told the court the girls came out of the apartment at 135 a. m. and were staggering as they walked toward Harvard square.

The girls said they had gone to Harvard square at 1130 p. m. and had been met by a Harvard student who took them to his room, where they drank some gin.

The girls said of the type that have been giving the police considerable trouble. Pelletier testified. As a rule they frequent the places where students may be found, he said, and leave about 2 a. m., generally making a "bait" for Boston.

Police say that they do not believe the girls gave correct names or addresses and that they are inclined to doubt any information given. Judge Stone said, however, that the girls would be given a chance to reform if the results of the investigation warranted such action.

There was no doubt that they dined too long with forbidden liquor, he continued, but they were probably guilty of other offenses.

CONFERENCE OF FEDERATED CHARITIES

Jewish Welfare Workers in Three-Day Session at Sunset Lodge

The first inter-departmental conference ever to be held by the Federated Jewish Charities was to night at Sunset Lodge, Sharon, and will continue until Sunday evening. The conference is for the purpose of bringing together all the most efficient executives of the Federation to discuss their respective positions in relation to the general good of the Federation. The workers of the organization, both Jewish and non-Jewish, will be present, as well as members of the Board of Governors. The Executive Committee, and representatives of all the constituent organizations of the Federation.

The program will start with a luncheon at 12:30, after which Dr. Maurice B. Horne, executive director of the charities, will talk on "The American Jewish Community." Maurice Taylor, president of the Federated Jewish Charities, will then speak on "The Relation of the Jewish Community to the American Community." Dr. J. J. Horne, executive director of the Federation, will then speak on "The Jewish Community in America." The session will close at 4:30, with a short service.

The following afternoon, Mrs. H. K. Kanner will preside over the session on Jewish Community Activities. The problem of Jewish education will be taken up by Mrs. Louis H. Kanner, who will speak on "The Place of Jewish Education in the Community."

Sunday evening is to be given up to entertainment. The discussion will continue with Maurice Taylor in the chair. The problems of case work will be taken up.

After every paper there will be informal discussion, and at the end there will be general summaries and conclusions.

A. A. I. MOVES TO PLACE BAY ON FOREIGN ATHLETES

U. S. PLANS TO CHECK INVADERS

Charges of Excessive Expense Gouging by Nurni and Hoff Stir Officials

By DAVID J. WALSH, International News Service Sports Editor

New York, May 7.—There will be no more of the low cost of American athletes who happen to be able to jump higher, run faster or explode quicker than the rest.

The writer has been given to understand that the American Athletic Union, a body of sportsmen who are in the line of business of the A. A. I., have decided to check the expense of the foreign athletes who are invited to compete in the A. A. I. games.

From now on, according to official opinion, American institutions will be required to furnish athletes with the distinct understanding that the A. A. I. will be good for not more than one or two meals.

The official explanation today was that Hoff would accept the A. A. I. if it demands in good faith that it would be a mitigating circumstance of course, but it will not put the fact that Hoff, hereafter and forever hereafter, the prominent athlete is not like a high priced star.

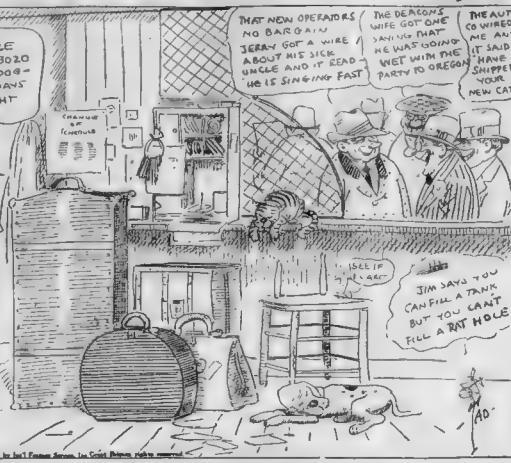

Both were charged with demanding excessive expense, Nurni by the managers of a relay carnival and Hoff by a Chicago newspaper which claimed to be on the inside of what transpired during the Nurni-Hoff tour of that section.

Nurni, a man who had to three out of three cents create an unfavorable impression, whether true or false.

Hoff passed up successive relay carnivals at the University of Pennsylvania, although the writer happened to know that each received an urgent invitation from Philadelphia.

Where a man chooses to appear in a relay carnival, of course, it is his own business, but the writer is merely a interested coincidence.

DAILY SHORT STORY

"Some one has to stay with Aunt Kitt," remarked Sallie laconically. "Dear me, why do old ladies have to get about when there is a gorgeous tennis tournament on in the city?"

"I'm named for Aunt Kitt's nephew, Kate, shagging eloquent shouldered. I suppose I shall pay the penalty by making her limousine and fluffing her pillows while you and she get looking new and come back to greet me."

Lou, the eldest of the three, was wearing a blue and pink laparop. She made a lovely picture as she stood by the table, dressed in a simple pink singlet, her hair knotted low on her neck, the long fingers of her artist's hands caressing the stems of the flowers. The burst of everything and always fallen on Lou. By reason of the sixteen months seniority, she had been mother to the other three and she had never shared her responsibilities. She wanted a little of the disnominate looking girl. "Mittie," she said solemnly. "You know well enough that I'm going to play with delecting and Aunt Kitt. She's only one of a few

FOXY GRANDPA'S DAILY BEDTIME STORY A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY and I were walking along the street and we came to a corner where a poor blind man stood with a tin-cup in his hand, waiting for people to drop coins to it.

I stopped, put my hand in my coat, and dropped a coin into it. A pathetic smile of thanks shone across the blind man's face. He heard the click of money falling into the tin of the cup.

"The organized charity says that it should not give money to beggars on the streets," I said, "but I can't resist giving money to the blind."

"He must be awful to be blind," murmured Bobby. "But isn't there some way he can read, Foxy?"

"No, there is," I said.

"I don't there some kind of special for blind people?" asked the boy.

"There are," I replied, "and I will tell you about the man who first thought of this wonderful thing for the poor people who have to spend their lives in the dark."

Bobby pressed my hand and looked up into my face as I continued:

Toward the end of the eighteenth century, there lived in France a good man by the name of Valentin Haüy. Much of his time was spent in trying to make poor people happy, and one of his greatest interests was in the blind.

"He spent many hours thinking how to bring happiness to those without sight, and wondered if there was not some way in which they could be able to enjoy themselves through the mind, even if they could not through the eyes."

"One day he was walking across a boulevard in Paris when he came across a blind beggar like the one we just saw. His pocket was touched by the misery of the man, and he reached into his pocket to give the man some money. He took out a coin and put it into the blind man's hand, and started off.

"But, you have made a mistake. Surely you did not mean to give me so much money. You have given me a coin instead of a sou."

"Imagine the astonishment of Valentin Haüy - not only at the honesty of the poor man, but at his

THIS is the time of year when the Easter bride begins to pay that her fruit and her marriage will "jell."

Nobody loves a fat woman - much. But after all, a living skeleton is not exactly "the bones you love to touch." And a race-like fellow can put out the eyes of love as quickly as a man.

A woman's love, like a cat, has nine lives, but, every time a man shows her scientific attitudes it loses one of them.

No man can be your honest critic and your honest lover at the same time. The eyes of love are too full of stardust to see any flaws in a woman.

Only a rare saint will try to win a woman by boasting of others. The true art of that sort of thing makes every woman feel that life before her was a total blank, and his heart, a vacuum.

No woman realizes what a human "motion counter" her husband is until she suddenly needs a match, a rubber band, a postage stamp, a sharp pencil, a big handkerchief, a cushion, a fountain pen, a cigarette case for a five-dollar bill.

Nowadays a man's belief in women's love to disagree with his milk teeth, and to repudiate, again, with his false teeth.

Just about the time a society woman wants the children named after calling her current husband "Daddy," the marriage "goes dead," and she has to start all over again, bearing them for a new one.

Love is what makes a man appear beautifully happy when a woman is moving up the precious yard of hair across his thin spot.

Love is what makes a man appear beautifully happy when a woman is moving up the precious yard of hair across his thin spot.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston Evening American says: If you "Best Joke" is a Evening American.

"I can travel with his boy by the conductor." "How old is he?"

"Four years old."

"But—My, he looks more like eleven."

"Well, I can't help it if he is."

COOK COO'S by Ted Cook

A WORD FOR SANITATION

Two men up, as 'tis my firm resolve to do my best before the heat of the day. But Lord! I cannot find my hat, and one shoon is missing from the bed-post. So high words with my dress, and she blame the shoope doge pumper, poor wreck. And it did vex me mightily to hear the poor pooch so berousht. Anon I find my hat and shoon in the broom closet where I did hide them on yester'en, and so to turn by hackney coach.

Alvinus Cuddibach Over No Dream

Lined in a miserable little hall room. But he cleaned and he pressed his clothes looked so peachy that every one thought he had come to the bank.

He married the daughter of Harlowe Jeff.

And now he's more peaches than the old man himself.

Which proves it a great intellectual stunt.

To suffer in secret and put on a front.

Governor Fuller's Mistake

His Speech at Malden

Prompted solely by a sense of public duty, the Boston Evening American expresses herewith, most respectfully, and also most earnestly, the hope that His Excellency, the Governor of Massachusetts, will not, during the remainder of his term of office, repeat the speech which the newspapers report him to have delivered in his home city of Malden a few nights ago.

In that speech, as reported, he administered a public rebuke to several judges in the District and Superior courts of the Commonwealth for their decisions in certain cases involving a minor now awaiting trial charged with a crime punishable by death.

This minor is too poor to hire a lawyer, but in spite of that fact, he is entitled, under the Constitution of Massachusetts, which the Governor, when he took office, swore to uphold, to a presumption of innocence until he is proven guilty, to his day in court, and to a fair trial.

In the same speech the Governor is reported to have cited the court record of previous convictions of this defendant—and this in the face of the fact that the law does not permit the District Attorney to make such a citation, and the Legislature has recently refused to amend the law in this particular.

This newspaper does the Governor the justice to believe that he shares with his fellow-citizens of the Commonwealth that love of liberty and passion for justice indissolubly linked with the name and fame of Massachusetts from the foundation of her Government.

Therefore, the Governor must share the desire of his fellow-citizens that the humblest person in the Commonwealth shall not be denied, by reason of his poverty, the frailty of his nature, his race, religion or walk in life, his day in court, and that justice tempered with mercy which government was set up in the Commonwealth to provide.

In fairness to the Governor, it must be assumed that he did not intend in what he said at Malden to put himself above the law.

We must believe that neither contempt for justice, nor indifference to the dignity of his exalted office, was responsible for the short-comings of the Malden speech.

These can be accounted for only upon the assumption that in the enthusiasm of an extempore speech in support of law and order, the Governor overlooked the fact that the Constitution of the Commonwealth makes him rather the keeper of the conscience of any judge, nor the censor of the decision of any judge.

The Governor and the Legislature are jointly clothed by the Constitution with the power of removal by address of a judge found to be unfit for further service on the bench. Were that process invoked today against the judges publicly rebuked by the Chief Executive in the course of his Malden speech, how could the Governor, in good conscience, take his appointed part in the Constitutional proceedings against the judges?

Would not the fact that the judges had already been rebuked by the Governor, without a chance to defend themselves, disqualify the Governor in the mind of the public, if not under the letter of the Constitution, for service in any proceedings against those judges?

The truth is that the time has come to call a halt to the veritable warfare which has been waged for nearly a year against the independence of the Massachusetts judiciary in general, and against the integrity of judges in particular, and their freedom to dispense justice without fear or favor, justice tempered with mercy, whenever, in their discretion, it should be so tempered, that justice which only "a government of laws and not of men can provide."

It cannot be that Governor Fuller is in sympathy with this warfare, or has anything but contempt for those demagogues who are waging it.

And that is another reason for regretting the Malden speech and for hoping that it will never be repeated under this or any succeeding Administration on Beacon Hill.

Longworth's Opportunity

His Influence on Boulder Dam Will Be of Great Benefit

The father of conservation in America was Theodore Roosevelt. His son-in-law is Speaker of the House of Representatives, an able and popular man with a future.

Speaker Longworth has right now a fine chance to write his name alongside that of Roosevelt as a factor in conservation.

The House Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation is soon to vote on the Boulder Dam bill, which the Administration endorses.

Speaker Longworth has influence with that committee. He can probably effect the maneuvering of certain interests which are trying to delay or defeat this important measure.

For example, the Democratic members are being told that they will help to hold the bill back this session the defeat of Senator Cameron, of Arizona, for re-election can be effected. All but one of the Democratic members of the committee have said that they were for the bill.

Democratic bad faith on this measure would ruin Democratic chances in a lot of close States more important than Arizona. We do not believe that all these Democrats can be persuaded to play small politics in a matter of such commanding interest to so many people.

But in any event the Speaker's active influence among the Republican majority, if exercised, would swing the bill to a vote on its floor, where its passage on merit should be assured.

A Great American

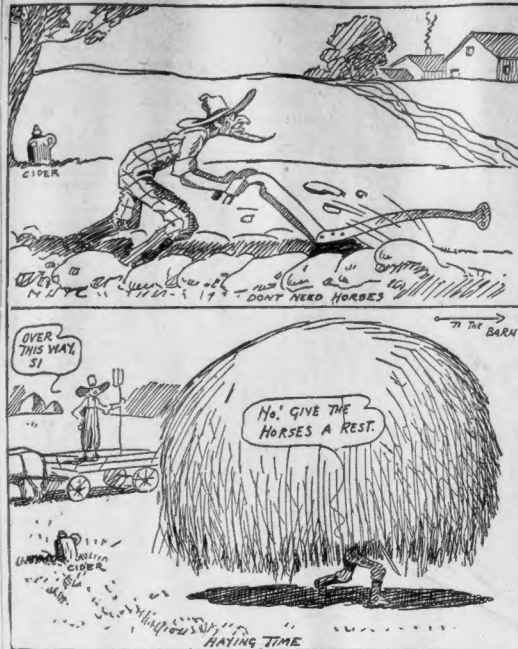

John Hays Hammond's Constructive Thinking of Inestimable Value

Few men have ever put into the working hours of seventy-one years so varied or useful a lot of activities as are to the credit of that great son of California, John Hays Hammond.

So it was fitting that the more enlightened part of the whole world through distinguished representatives should take part in his testimonial birthday dinner last Monday night. Mr. Hammond has long stood at the head of one of the most useful professions. But he has been more than an engineer. He has carried the engineering spirit of research for facts and courage and ability to face them into varied public relations. He has been that rare combination, a practical reformer.

The value of such constructive thinking is inestimable.

FAILURE SHOWN IN LINES ON FACE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A VAST sum of money and infinite pains are expended by those who wish to improve their personal appearance. Beauty doctors abound, and there are those who make a living by remedying defects of our personal appearance. We pull out our gray hairs and massage our faces with cold cream in order to remove the first appearing indications of old age.

Those who lament the fact that they are getting ugly, however, often fail to take into account the effect of the spirit upon the personal appearance. This effect is slow sometimes, but it is sure. The constant harboring of evil thoughts registers its mark upon our face. The habitual thought of failure expresses itself upon the lines of our countenance.

By and by the cheerful and hopeful and sunny disposition shines out through whatever physiognomy has been given us, and there are many people who are naturally not favored by nature who become attractive by the light of the spirit within.

The features gradually are affected by what we think. It behooves us, therefore, when we are young, to get into the habit of thinking cheerful thoughts, of cultivating such a spirit as will register its attraction upon our countenance. No other way of rendering ourselves attractive is equal to this.

Some of the most loving countenances we have ever seen have been naturally ill-favored, but the light of a happy soul gradually transformed them until they were attractive. A perverted spirit marks eventually the mouth and the eyes, and the wrinkles of old age are sure to come upon those whose thoughts are tainted with failure.

To keep an interest in life and to think thoughts of success are the best remedies against an unpleasant personal appearance.

It is rare indeed to find a countenance that offends us if it covers a spirit that is helpful and happy.

DOES YOUR MIND NEED A SPRING CLEANING?

Have you been shocked by the language used by some relative or friend who was recovering from the effects of a drug administered before an operation?

And you have wondered what you would say under similar circumstances?

The chances are that your remarks would be the utterance of thoughts which frequently course through your mind.

Is your mind clean or otherwise?

You know and you are the only one on earth who does know.

What would you say anyway if you were under the influence of a drug and did not have sense enough to control your tongue?

Maybe you have thought about this and you have hoped fervently that you might not have an operation experience; for you do not know what might be the result of your ravings.

One never knows whose turn will come next and you do not know how long you will be successful in hiding your real self.

At this time the house-cleaning season—may not have a mind-cleaning? Be thankful that you still have opportunity to cleanse your mind. Remember that clean thinking comes by clean thinking every day.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

CAN a girl be a good wife and a good student at the same time?

That's what Marcelle wants to know. And a whole lot of boys and breakfast-table husbands are going to arise and yell that she can't. But let's listen to Marcelle first. Marcelle has been working for the last three years. She is engaged to be married soon and she also wishes to finish her college career, which the work has interrupted. She will take her college years to finish college. She has saved enough money to come and her fiancee earns enough so they can live comfortably. If Marcelle is economical.

That plan, to take a small apartment, Marcelle plans to do. She can't marry and keep the house. They have the apartment cleaned thoroughly once a month and send out the laundry. A nice plan—but will it work?

Can I do all these things and still not slight my husband? asks Marcelle. "Or will he be continually tired and disagreeable over work?"

If Marcelle's problem were limited to Marcelle it would not be of great importance. But it happens to be one of the commonest problems of our present generation. There is hardly a family that does not touch. So how about it?

They fail just like every husband and wife. They fail just like every husband and wife. They fail just like every husband and wife. They fail just like every husband and wife.

There's more to the problem than that. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

Not Selfish. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

Something Out. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

Words of the Wise Men. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

When a good man lends money to a friend, he gets sorrow for it. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

A fixed idea made in madness or in hysteria. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

Some people are always grumbling because roses have thorns. I am thankful that thorns have roses. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

Our greatest glory is not in never being hurt, but in rising after we are hurt. Marcelle has a million good little agonies in her head. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student. She is a good wife and a good student.

Double Dealing Ingrained in European Diplomacy

By James A. Reed

United States Senator From Missouri.

GERMANY consented to her by the Locarno Pact, doubtless relying upon the protestations of amity and good will and the claim that there was a universal desire to wipe out the bitterness that had threatened to extend among the nations, and in consideration of which Germany was to be given a permanent seat on the Council of the League of Nations.

She was to have full fellowship with Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan; to occupy and possess the important right of being one of the five great nations having a permanent chair in the deliberative body of the new super-state.

HER statements undoubtedly felt that under these conditions they would be able to protect the interests of the German people. As she took her seat there she knew, of course, that one of those countries, France, was incensed against her and she had reason to believe that Great Britain, Italy and Japan were in good faith in their promise of a desire to receive Germany back into the family of European nations.

She had also reason to believe that France would be in good faith in their promise of a desire to receive Germany back into the family of European nations. She had also reason to believe that France would be in good faith in their promise of a desire to receive Germany back into the family of European nations.

It was impossible to sustain the good faith of that kind of dealing. The incident is a complete demonstration of the fact that, in dealing with these European countries, no matter what instrument they may lay upon the table, they are liable to have secret intrigue which modify, qualify or destroy the effect of the agreement they have openly signed.

WE have had our own demonstration of this kind of dealing. The incident is a complete demonstration of the fact that, in dealing with these European countries, no matter what instrument they may lay upon the table, they are liable to have secret intrigue which modify, qualify or destroy the effect of the agreement they have openly signed.
